My phone is out of order! So I'm writing to you. I need your help! It's for the homeless. I have lots of things I can give them. I've made a list:*

- 2 saucepans
- 4 teaspoons (new)
- 2 soup dishes (good condition)
- 1 men's coat in very good condition
- 1 pair of men's woollen gloves
- 2 pairs of cotton sheets
- 4 new towels
- 6 pairs of warm socks
- 4 pairs of trousers, good condition
- 2 pillow cases
- 2 bowls
- 3 men's shirts
- 5 men's pullovers, in good condition
- 1 complete set of coffee cups, new

*Could you come next Saturday, 7 October? Come for lunch. Then we can put the things in boxes. Could you bring me some films on DVD? I get so bored now that my poor Henry is gone. Could you also buy me some stamps and some envelopes? I'll pay you back for them.
Thank you dear!*

There are a lot of possible sentences.

PART 7

You switch on your computer and you find an email.

Hi! Are you free on Saturday 7 at lunchtime?
I feel like trying out the new pizzeria. See you later!
Karin

You are not free on Saturday lunchtime. You are going to your great aunt's for lunch. In the afternoon, you are putting her things into boxes. Send an answer to Karin. You can't have lunch with her on Saturday. Explain why. Suggest dinner in the evening at the pizzeria. Or lunch on Sunday.

Here is an example message, which includes the elements requested.

Hi Karen! I'm not free on Saturday lunchtime. My great-aunt has invited me to lunch. After that I'm helping her sort out some stuff. She has lots of things to give to the hostel for the homeless. I can't let her down! But I am free on Saturday evening or Sunday lunchtime. Is that all right for the pizzeria? See you soon! Eddie.
