Tour guide and interpreter...

Edwina Arty: Tell me Yannis, your sister is a tour guide-interpreter, isn't she? And she works mostly in Greece? Yes, I can understand that. It's just that I would like to take a trip there to bury myself in the culture, Yannis... You can never have enough of that. There's never enough time! The Acropolis! The ruins, which bear witness to the superb Greek civilisation that we read of in our schoolbooks. So she looks after the tourists from arrival to departure, is that so? And she takes care of everything, I suppose: all the details, hotels, restaurants, transport throughout the country, excursions. And she will translate everything? Into French and English? But I don't need French...

She accompanies you on trips, you say? For Greece, yes! She also does tours of Graphoville!? The old town, yes! Not the supermarket, obviously! And the castle? The one that's in ruins, not the one where Lady Adelaide lives, surely! Yes, OK. I understand. Well, I'll see her tomorrow, here, at the same time, for my trip to Greece. Tell her that, would you. I must go to the travel agency? Really? Oh dear. I haven't made up my mind yet... Bring me a coffee without sugar while I'm waiting, would you?

In a similar line of work, Maria, Yannis's sister, could also have been: tour guide – conference guide – interpreter – translator – travel agent – employee in a tourist office – manager of a tourist venue...
