Detective inspector

Polombo: Yes, Mrs Aria, I love my job. But don't call me "lieutenant", it's Inspector. Yes I understand, you prefer lieutenant Columbo. You think I look like him? I'm flattered! Anyway, to conduct an enquiry like this, you need patience and a cool head. But I'm not always out and about... There's a lot of administrative work to be done and reports to be written!

A few words relating to a police inspector's work:

Here is a text using a lot of words from the list. Read it carefully, as you will have to use the same words afterwards.

Alibi	Accomplice	Assassination
Burglary	Confession	Criminal
Enquiry	Evidence	Face to face
Guilty	Motive	Murder weapon
Offence	Police custody	Premeditation
Questioning	Reconstruction	Search
Search warrant	Second offender	Statement
Suspect	Theft	Witness

Higher education, yes. A university degree is useful, but there are no formal educational requirements. Recruitment is at local level, with a national competency-based framework... Sorry Watson ? (It's Watson, my little dog, he wants to add something.) Oh yes! You couldn't join the police force, because you weren't big enough! We have to take a lot of assessment tests and we have to be physically fit and have very good eyesight!

In a similar line of work, Inspector Polombo could also have been: policeman – police superintendent -- security officer – hospital security guard – private detective – professional investigator – forensic science technician - head security officer – dog handler – profiler – security guard...

Notes by Inspector Polombo on the burglary at the Theatre Hotel:

Offence: theft of jewellery, stage costumes and a lucky charm.

Enquiry made more difficult in the world of show business.

Witnesses questioned: restaurant owner and hotel receptionist.

Suspected motive: someone who collects objects belonging to famous artistes, all women. May have an accomplice, possibly in the film business?

Suspects: the actor Paul Handsome, but says he has an alibi and was burgled himself. No evidence. Not the sort of person to make a confession during police questioning. Get a search warrant to search his hotel room.

The enquiry is making little headway: try bringing Handsome and Edwina Arty face to face, as their statements are contradictory. Handsome could be the middleman between the thief and the person behind all this...
